Irma Observes Remembrance Day

The usual memorial service was held in Irma on Remembrance Day, Nov. 11th at 10:45 A.M. The service this year was held in the United Church and conducted by Rev. E. Longmire assisted by the girls' choir. The attendance of ex-service men was not large owing to sub-zero temperature.

The response of the Irma Signal Corps to the request that they join in the parade was good. They with the members of the V.V.R. marched from the Legion hall to the church under the command of R. C. McFarland, Unit Commander. In spite of the cold weather the attendance at the service was fairly good. Mr. Longmire delivered a very fine memorial address which was greatly appreciated by the vets as was also the services of the girls' choir led by Miss Lois Longmire.

The two minutes silence in honor of those who gave their lives in the great struggle was observed.

Com. R. H. Stone acted as bugler for the occasion and sounded the Last Post and Reveille.

The returns from the sale of poppies this year amounted to $16.00. The Legion members are very grateful for the support given them at this time.

HOG CARCASS GRADING STATEMENT AVAILABLE TO EVERY PRODUCER

Farmers are entitled to individual statements, from the shipper or trucker, covering hogs which they have sold showing:

1. The official carcass grade.
2. The carcass weight.
3. The price per pound for the basic grade.
4. Price differentials for the various grades.
5. Any deductions such as transportation and commission.

The official grader of the Dominion Department of Agriculture is responsible only for the grade, and issues a statement showing the grade for every farmer's lot of carcasses graded.

Most commission firms and packing houses are now issuing individual statements of settlement for every farmer's lot of hogs. In some cases these are mailed direct to farmers, but for the most part they are turned over to the shipper or trucker, and it is in this responsibility to see that they reach the farmers concerned, and are not discarded as sometimes happens.

The Hog Carcass Grading regulations require the shipper to:

1. Identify the hogs.
2. Provide the grader with a manifest showing particulars regarding ownership identification.
3. Issue to the farmer a statement as outlined above.
4. Make settlement to the farmer according to the official grade.

It is very much in the farmer's interest to see that whoever delivers the hogs to the market meets all these requirements.

Most shippers or truckers are efficient and trustworthy, but it is known that some are disposed to misrepresent the official carcass grading service to the farmers.

The Dominion Department of Agriculture has established an efficient system which will operate to the producers benefit if he will only take advantage of it.

Farmers who do not receive statements of grade within a few days after marketing their hogs should apply to their shipper, if this fails communicate with the official grader at the point where the hogs were slaughtered.

Nearly all hogs are killed on the same day or day after arrival, and the grader issues the grading certificates immediately after slaughter. The commission, firm or packer at once completes the settlement and the complete information is then available to the farmer, either direct by mail or, as is usually the case, through the shipper or trucker.

The World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange

It seems fitting enough that Great Britain and the Greeks should be standing side by side defending Democracy against a common enemy. Democracy, or those principles of freedom and liberty which insist that the individual citizen is superior to the State, and shall not be merely the pawn of a monarch or a dictator, was first invented by Solon the Greek in the year 594 B.C. and was actually put into practice as a system of government in Athens—with a deliberative assembly which sat continuously throughout the year to design laws and to govern the country—in 503 B.C.

This system of Democracy was eventually lost by the Greeks, but the English won it back for the common people when King John was obliged to sign the great Magna Carta at Runnymede on June 15th, 1215.

Today these dearly won rights and liberties are again in danger, and it seems more than a mere coincidence that the Greeks, who originally discovered democracy and put it practically to work, and the English who restored it to the world should be fighting side by side to maintain those precious rights of the individual, and fighting moreover on the same Grecian soil and seas where democracy was won originally by the Greeks in 594 B.C., or 2,445 years ago.

URGENT COMPLETION OF TRANS-CANADA

Completion of the Trans-Canada highway at an early date is essential and is being advocated by the Canadian Good Roads Association. This action was pressed for when the association held its recent annual convention in Quebec city.

For years the Alberta Motor Association has given strong support to the campaign to bring about the completion of the national road. Now that this country is involved in war, there is a strong belief that there is greater need for a road across the country that also would serve military purposes.

Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works for Alberta, who attended the convention, declared upon his return that the association had favored adoption of a five-year plan to finish the road.

This meant that the whole project could be advanced and completed on a co-ordination basis, instead of haphazard building of different stretches or links in the chain.

The completion of the Big Bend closes up the western link but there is still a stretch in northern Ontario which will have to be built.

The A.M.A. intends to press for early completion of this national road, a project in which all Alberta motorists will be interested.

Trickery, Treachery, Terrorism

By this time the causes of the war in which we are presently engaged and the issues involved should be reasonably well clarified, sufficiently to enable us to determine why we are fighting, what the objective is and the degree of intensity necessary to ensure ultimate victory.

Not much time nor space need be devoted to the causes of the greatest and most-widely destructive conflict that the world has ever known. A madman has run amok in Europe, and after dazzling his own people with specious promises that they are to become the dominant entity in a "new world order," has set out to conquer the world. It was a pre-determined program. By tricks, treachery and terrorism, he first enslaved his own people who, at first, willingly surrendered their liberties on the false promise that by so doing they should bend others to their bidding. This accomplished, the German people, at Hitler's behest, by trickery, treachery and terrorism, backed by the machine gun and the bomb, have succeeded in over-running the greater part of continental Europe and have enslaved millions of liberty-loving people.

The tide was running strongly in Hitler's favor and it appeared as if his ultimate objective—world domination—might be within his grasp, until he made his abortive attempt to enslave the British people by the direct route of invasion of British soil. Hitler realizes that his dream of world or even of partial world domination is now impossible until Britain has been routed. He has turned aside for the time being and is attempting to achieve this objective in other directions and indirectly, again by the employment of those weapons of which he has proved himself a past master—trickery, treachery and terrorism.

A Simple Issue

As for the issues in this gigantic conflict, they can be reduced to a single simple statement. It is this: Is the world to be allowed to revert to the savagery and barbarism of the dark ages or, are the peoples of the world to be allowed to continue to emerge into the broad light of a beneficent, all-embracing civilization, towards which they have been struggling upward and onward for a thousand years?

If the doctrine of Nazism is to be allowed universal sway, it simply means that the world is to be engulfed in all the brutalities and tyrannies that held sway throughout the dark ages of history. It means the loss of all personal liberties for the rank and file of humanity. It will be left to arrogant dictators to say what shall be worshipped, how and when; what views may be expressed on all or any subjects and by whom and when; what shall be listened to and what shall not be heard. Farmers will be told what to produce and how much of it. Business men will be told what they may sell and people what they may buy. Women will be told whom they may marry and how many children they shall bear. People will even be told what they may eat and what they may not eat. Education will be emasculated and opportunity for the individual abrogated.

And we betide the individual who offends the slavish code in which he will become enmeshed. A murmur against his hard lot will spell torture and imprisonment. Death will lurk around the corner for him who dares to breathe a word against his despotic masters. It will be too late to kick against the pricks. All human desires for betterment, for enlightenment, for spiritual nourishment will be sternly suppressed and ground to dust beneath the iron heel of Nazism.

To The Finish

These are the facts which have to be faced. They must be recognized as irrefutable and must be met squarely, if civilization is not to be overwhelmed and the world plunged into a black night which might last a thousand years. Great Britain has recognized the issue fully and is now waging a gallant fight against these forces of darkness. Fortunately Canada is now awakening to a realization of the seriousness of the struggle and the test to which she is being subjected. There are growing signs that the United States is becoming more and more keenly aware of the peril which is threatening from all sides.

The day of wishful thinking is long past. Hitler is implementing his promise to wage an "all out" war. "The end justifies the means" is his doctrine. As John W. Daffoe in an admirable contribution to the radio series "Let's Face the Facts" said: "Hitler and Mussolini, in their ideas personify human nature at its most tigerish level. They cannot afford to leave the light of human freedom shining anywhere in the world. For them at least the world cannot continue half free and half slave. Therefore they wage war, world wide in its purpose; and by a law of iron necessity this war must go on until it destroys every vestige of freedom in the world, or the dictators are themselves consumed in the fires which they have ignited."

With such a desperate issue facing them, there is only one thing facing the yet unconquered democracies, and that is to put everything they possess into the fight and to wage it to a finish.

Russians Move To Ceded Territory

"Pravda," organ of the Communist party, said the other day that more than 1,000 families were moving from collective farms in Soviet Russia to proper settlements in the new Karelian-Finnish republic, ceded to Russia at the close of the Russian-Finnish war. "Pravda" said towns and villages devastated and depopulated by the war were being restored.

Before the war, scientists were exploding bombs in the ocean near Bermuda, for the peaceful purpose of detecting nature of rock formations in the depths.

Woman Legal Right

Now On Legal Staff Of The Department Of Justice

Henriette Bourque, who says she "really studied law as training for the mind and its cultural value," is now showing the department of justice legal staff that a woman can be a good lawyer.

Already Miss Bourque has given a good demonstration of her ability. She had to go to the department. She was the only woman among 15 or 20 applicants for the position, and she won out on the sole ground that her qualifications were the best.

It was touch and go for a while whether Miss Bourque would be a lawyer or a concert pianist. She reached the cross-road after graduation from the University of Ottawa.

Finally she enrolled at the law school at the University of Montreal. Only girl in the class, both she and the men were uncomfortable at first. She got over it; they became more comfortable than ever when she outstripped them all. Every year she topped the examination list and her male opponents had to admit this slim, dark-eyed girl had a pleasing personality as well.

Finally Miss Bourque graduated with the highest honors, and prizes for Roman law, civil and several other varieties. She entered the firm of Beaulieu and Gouin at Montreal. However, under Quebec law she couldn't call herself a lawyer in that province (she still can't) so she made application and was accepted to the bar of British Columbia. That gave her the right to practice in federal courts. She applied for the justice department job, and got it.

Miss Bourque is the daughter of Dr. E. Bourque, Ottawa. Her father says she got her first training for her profession in arguments with her two brothers and four sisters over billiards. She still plays the game, and is a keen naturalist as well, usually spending her weekends with a number of nature loving friends, hiking through Ontario woods.

Of her work at Ottawa, Miss Bourque says little, but she seems to like it. In the legal department, it's her opinion that counts, not her sex. "Any prejudice there might have been 25 years ago against a woman lawyer has disappeared," she says.

Ancient Manuscripts

Egypt's priceless literary treasures, more than 180,000 manuscripts and ancient tomes, have been made safe from air raids in a desert hill cave of secret location. Some time ago, the treasures of Theban-Ambra and other Pharaohs were buried deep in the stone vaults of the Cairo museum.

Some Romans of 100 B.C. had salt water tanks at their villas, in which to hold oysters fresh for banquets.

Mounting Charges

Board Bill For Graf Spee Crew Reaching Large Figures

Argentina has marked up a 1,000,000-peso board bill (about $227,500) against the Nazi government for entertaining since last December 1,000 or more crewmen of the scuttled pocket battleship, Admiral Graf Spee.

Despite this hospitality, informed sources said 19 officers and 60 sailors have escaped from internment in Argentina, apparently in attempts to reach Germany.

Attempted and successful escapes, raising necessity for more guards and costly searches, have added to the expense Argentina, under the terms of international law, must bear until the end of the war.

The Nazi seamen consumed huge stocks of Argentina foods after weeks of cruising on limited supplies, so Argentina officials first appropriated 500,400 pesos to meet costs of maintaining the crew.

Under The Hague convention, Germany is responsible for these costs and she must settle with Argentina when the war is done.

Argentina attempted to lighten the burden of its unwanted guests by spreading the sailors through interior provinces in small groups, hoping the Nazis would find work and become self-supporting. A lack of suitable jobs and the strong temptation to escape defeated the plan.

Trade Routes Open

British Trade In The Mediterranean Is Increasing

British trade with countries in the eastern Mediterranean is increasing daily as the Royal Navy and Royal Air Force keep safe the sea lanes through which merchant ships must pass.

For a few weeks after Italy's entry into the war, traffic was interrupted and the Mediterranean was closed, but, according to authoritative London circles, the position is improving day by day.

Britain has been buying dried fruit from Greece and Turkey, hemp and flax from the Balkans generally, and a constant stream of cotton, cotton seed, cotton seed cake, salt, phosphate of lime and onions has been coming from Egypt.

From Cyprus have come asbestos, iron pyrite and locust beans and from Palestine Britain has been getting greatly increased imports of potash.

A Nazi Error

British Method Of Aerial Warfare More Effective Than German

Hitler's air-krig against Britain failed to blitz because he personally chose the wrong method of attack. Over-confident after his conquests accomplished by breaking the morale of France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Norway, he thought he could win England by the same method.

Instead of picking out British airplane factories, for instance, and devoting two weeks of methodical attack, if necessary, for their destruction one by one, he chose to conduct an air-krig campaign designed primarily to incite the people of London to change its government for peace. It was the first mistake he made.

Only two airplane factories in England have been put out of commission by the Germans since the start of the war, and these were out only three to four weeks. You may accept the most authoritative word possible here for that.

The British method of warfare against Germany has been much more effective, although less sensational. They picked out oil depots and factories in the beginning and have bombed them systematically, avoiding the kind of wasted effort, from a military standpoint, in which Hitler has indulged in London.

This edge can be pressed by the British through the winter as Germany is not protected by the fog which usually enshrouds England during that season.

By April British plane production will have increased to the point which should completely free her from the danger of invasion—Paul Mallon in the Minneapolis Star Journal.

Phonograph Returning

The Sale Of Phonograph Records Increasing Of Late

The phonograph is now said to be making a remarkable comeback. Last year 4,000,000 records were sold in the United States. This year the number is estimated to reach about 130,000,000.

The reason for such a tremendous jump in one year seems difficult to ascertain, but there are probably several causes. One is that there has been a great reduction in prices of records, classic as well as dance and crooning, and people have taken advantage to buy records and make use of the hundreds of thousands, possibly million or two phonographs which have been standing neglected in a corner of the living-room, or relegated to the attic.

Another is that, after all, people like to be able to hear the tunes they like, and on the radio they have to take what they get—no matter what they want.—St. Thomas-Times Journal.

Homogenized milk, in which the fat globules are broken up and scattered, is manufactured by "cracking" whole milk under a pressure of 2,500 pounds.

Yellowstone's famous geysers broke a record recently, when nine major geysers spouted within one hour.

The Spirit in Britain

German Brutalities Result In Stiffening The Morale

Perhaps the following may serve to illustrate the spirit in which those who have so terribly suffered in recent air raids take their sufferings. I was visiting a large hospital in which many air raid casualties from Southeast London have been received. I was with a father, a man about 40, whose child had just died. Another, seriously injured, was also in the hospital. While I was with him he received the news that his wife and remaining three children were also dead. When, a little later, before I left him, I asked what he was going to do, this was his reply—"Do? Why, join up to-morrow"—he meant it. I do not think, Sir, that this is an isolated case, but is rather typical of the spirit which the German brutalities are arousing, increasingly, in all classes of the community.—Bishop Golding-Bird in the London Times.

Express Thanks

Italian Internees Are Grateful For Rescue By Canadian Destroyer

Gratitude of Italian internees rescued from the liner Arandora Star, sunk by an enemy submarine while on the way to Canada, has been officially conveyed to the officers and men of the Canadian destroyer St. Laurent, which took part in the rescue, said Navy Minister Macdonald. The leader of the group of Italians who survived the sinking, sent his communication through the Brazilian ambassador in London who is acting for the Italian government during the war. The message has now been passed to Commander H. G. DeWolf, officer commanding the St. Laurent.

The King has presented the city of London with four motor ambulances and eight mobile canteens.

CHAPTER XXII—Continued

On the morning of that day he walked around his bedraggled mess before going to the city. He had grown attached to Royall House, he discovered, and almost wished he could take it with him. It was ugly and dreary and depressing. Even the vegetable garden seemed decayed. Pale ghosts of cabbages drooped like aged and mourning men amid the skeleton stalks of their departed fellows.

Across the desolation came the gardener, his shoulders protected from the drizzle by a sack.

"I've got a load of stuff to fill the pit," he said. "Come yesterday." The pit was an eyecore and had been for thirty years. It was a deep depression at the edge of the kitchen garden and Mr. Ellensbury had piled many dreary upon it. An ornamental pond, surrounded by banked rhododendrons. A swimming pool with a white-tiled bed and marble seats, where, hidden from the vulgar eye by trellised roses, a bather might sit and bask in the sun. Now it was the end of dreams—a pit to be filled. He stood on the edge of it. An unlovely hole in the ground, the bottom covered with water, the rusty corner of a petrol tin showing just above the surface.

By the side was a heap of rubbish, aged bricks and portions of brick, sand gravel, sheer asphalt empyrean. "I will fill it in—I have promised myself that exercise," said Mr. Ellensbury, forgetting for the moment that by to-morrow he would be filling in nothing more substantial than time.

The slimy hole held his eyes. If he could put Harlow there and see his big white face staring up from the mud—that would be a good filling!

He felt his face and neck go cold, his limbs tingling. Presently he turned himself away and walked back to the house. The car that Ratas hired for him was waiting—the driver bade him a civil good morning and said the weather was the worst he had ever known.

Mr. Ellensbury went in to breakfast without replying. The sight of the car was suggestive.

There was a garage known to Mr. Ellensbury where a car could be hired and no inconvenient questions asked. Stated more clearly, there are many people in London engaged in peculiar professions, to whom money was not an important consideration. They could not buy loyalty, but they were willing to pay for discretion.

Nova's Garage had a tariff that was considerably higher than any other, but the extra cost was money well spent. For when the police came to Nova's to learn who was the foreign-looking gentleman who had driven away from a West End jeweller's with the diamond ring he had bought and the row of pearls that had disappeared with him, Nova's was blandly ignorant. Nor could they recognize the lady who had driven the rich Bradford merchant to Harlow and left him drugged and pastured in the long grass of the meadows. He might, of course, travel by the Simplon Express or by the Blue Train—hand baggage was subject to a perfunctory examination on the train, and if he were bound for Monte Carlo the carriage of such wealth might be regarded as an act of madness by the customs officials and excite no other comment.

But both the Simplon and the Riviera Express are booked up at this season of the year, and a compartment could not be secured by any influence.

There remained only one alternative. To carry half the money in his trunk, distribute as much as he could amongst his pockets, and post the rest to himself at various hotels throughout France and Spain. And this would be a long and tedious job. He went into the outer office and brought back a packet of stout envelopes. He must not register them—these Latin post offices made the collection of a registered letter a fussy business.

Mr. Ellensbury did not know what he was talking about. "Right and wrong? * * * like taking a foot rule to measure St. Paul's." Ellensbury, something of a dialectician, could not resist the challenge. "Moral conduct isn't a matter of arithmetic, but a matter of proportion. You can't measure it with a yardstick, but by its angle. Ten degrees out of the perpendicular is as much a fault in a gatepost as in the leaning Tower of Pisa. * * * I make this American total a hundred and twelve thousand."

"And ten," added the manager. "The exchange is against us." Mr. Ellensbury had five bundles of the notes and fitted them into the suitcase.

"Now we will take the South American remittances," said the manager, painfully patient, a sigh in his every sentence, disapproval in every wag of his penholder. "I suppose you're right, but it does seem to me that a man's offense against society is in inverse ratio to the amount of money he possesses."

"Pouches!" murmured Mr. Ellensbury in protest.

"Pockets," then. When you reach the million mark you've got to a point beyond the comprehension of a jury. They look at the man and they look at the money, and they say 'not guilty' automatically. There ought to be a new set of laws dealing with property—starting with penalties for pinching a million, and working up to the place where you can indict a government for wasting nine figures. And the jury should be made up of accountants and novelists, who've never seen real money, but think in millions—$7,000 I make it."

Mr. Ellensbury performed a rapid calculation, consulting the little ready reckoner which bank clerks employ to find exchange values. "Right," he said. "You have neverly perverted principles, my friend. Whether a man steal 10 cents or $5,000,000—"

"Bank of Yokohama"—the manager sorted his papers. "The yen is at 1s. 8½d. and it only seems yesterday that I was on the twenty-four mark. Curious! Way down in the bowels of the earth a ledge of rocks slips over, a superheated passage of steam blows up, and the effect on the money market is disastrous! There is a lot of earthquake in Harlow; he has got into the Acts of God class—I'm giving you dollars for this—U.S. dollars."

"Quite O.K.," said Mr. Ellensbury, checking the bundles that were handed to him. It was growing dark when he carried out his suitcases and placed them inside the car. They were very heavy. It was strange how heavy paper money could be—and how bulky.

He drove to his office in Theobald's Road and was glad that many years before, when offered the choice between a small suite on the ground floor and a larger one on the first floor, he had chosen the former.

He had sent his clerk home early. It was a Friday, and the man had been given a fortnight's holiday and had had his salary in advance. Opening the outer door with his key, he tugged the two suitcases into his private room. Here was a brand new trunk and a passport. A few weeks before Harlow had ordered him to procure a passport for a "Mr. Jackson," whose other name was Fingle. Ellensbury had a distaste for the petty frauds of life, but as usual he had obeyed and duplicated the offense by applying for a second passport, forwarding a photograph of himself taken 20 years before and using a name which had not the faintest resemblance to his own.

He sat down with the two bulging grips before him and with a feeling of growing unease. Not that his conscience was troubling him. The bedridden Mrs. Ellensbury never entered his mind, the injustice he was doing to his employer, if it occurred to him at all, was a relief to his distress.

The weight and the bulk of paper money. The customs officials would search his suitcase at Calais or Havre, and the money would attract attention. He might put it at the bottom of the trunk and register it through. But the thefts of baggage on the French railways were notoriously frequent. He might, of course, travel by the Simplon Express or by the Blue Train—hand baggage was subject to a perfunctory examination on the train, and if he were bound for Monte Carlo the carriage of such wealth might be regarded as an act of madness by the customs officials and excite no other comment.

But both the Simplon and the Riviera Express are booked up at this season of the year, and a compartment could not be secured by any influence.

There remained only one alternative. To carry half the money in his trunk, distribute as much as he could amongst his pockets, and post the rest to himself at various hotels throughout France and Spain. And this would be a long and tedious job. He went into the outer office and brought back a packet of stout envelopes. He must not register them—these Latin post offices made the collection of a registered letter a fussy business.

CHAPTER XXIII.

With a Bradshaw by his side, he began his task. He exhausted the envelopes and went in search of another packet, but could find none of the requisite stoutness. Extinguishing the lights, he went out to a neighboring store, replenished his stock and came back. Halfway through the second packet and with the writing table piled with bulging envelopes, he was writing:

Hotel Reina Christina,

when there was a tap on the green baize door and he nearly screamed with fright.

Two grave eyes were watching him through the oval of glass that gave a view into the office. Leaping to his feet, his teeth set in a grin of fear, he dragged open the door.

Group Hospitalization

Properly Handled, Provides Benefits To Greater Number Of People

Dr. George F. Stevens, of Montreal, president of the Canadian Hospital Council, said that group hospitalization schemes, properly handled, provided benefits to many more people than those immediately concerned with hospitalization. He addressed a session of the Saskatchewan Hospital Association at Regina.

In addition to the relief of financial stress on patients, hospitals and doctors, the public also benefited, he stated. Payment of accounts by those participating in hospital schemes reduced the charity load which the public ordinarily bore through taxation.

A resolution passed by the Hospital Association approved the establishment of a group hospitalization pool for the dependents of enlisted men. It suggested that the scheme be operated by the Federal Government and that the Government should make deductions from dependents' allowances to establish a fund for paying hospital bills.

A. P. Donnelly, of Saskatoon, was elected president of the association for the next year.

Second Line Of Defence

Establishment In Canada Of British Industrial Plants

To-day a large proportion of the new plants being built in Canada are British. The Financial Post says that two plants which were under construction in Britain have been abandoned and, instead, similar plants are being built here.

They are witnessing, in fact, the establishment in Canada of Britain's second line of industrial defence. Mr. King's prediction that Canada would be the "arsenal of the Empire" sounded a little large at the time, but it is coming to pass—Vancouver Sun.

Warning To Democracies

After the next victorious war, we must strike the conquered foe so mercilessly that his spirit and the spirit of his children will be crushed for generations. "No conquered foe must ever again dare to look a German in the face as an equal. He must recognize him as an overlord."—Erich Von Ludendorff.

Italian Humor

Count Ciano—Makes Remarkable Statement About The Axis Powers

If someone should offer a prize for the most humorous remark of the month, we would suggest as the recipient Count Ciano of Italy. In his address before the diplomats and journalists assembled to hear the details of the German-Italian-Japanese pact, the count delivered an address, in which he made this startling remark:

"These three powers have no intention of challenging or threatening anyone."

A frequent rejoinder when anyone sets forth a palpably false idea is: "Do you think I was born yesterday?" Count Ciano, if he really meant to be accepted seriously, must assume that practically everyone in the world came into being the day before he made that remark. The count, of course, knows that people have memories, so perhaps he was striving to show that the three totalitarian powers have grown confident and have reformed, that while attempting to establish a new order in the world they have decided to accept the old order of Christian morality. Maybe he meant to put that idea across. He still deserves the prize for the most humorous remark of the month.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

FRIENDS

What is a Friend? I will tell you. It is a person with whom you dare to be yourself.—Frank Crane.

Real friendship is a slow grower, and never thrives unless engrained upon a stock of known and reciprocal merit.—Lord Chesterfield.

There are no greater miracles known to earth than perfection and unbroken friendship.—Mary Baker Eddy.

There can never be deep peace between two spirits never mutual respect, until, in their dialogue, each stands for the whole world.—Emerson.

When friendship is settled, you must trust; before it is formed, you must pass judgment.—Seneca.

A man that hath friends must show himself friendly; and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.—Proverbs 18:24.

Granted Safe Passage

Italian Commander To World's Fair At New York To Return Home

The British Government has granted safe passage back to Italy to Admiral Giuseppe Cantu, Italian Commissioner to the World's Fair, and ten members of his staff, together with their families. It was learned at the British Embassy. The step was taken, it was explained, as an act of courtesy to the United States since the Italian presence in America was due to an invitation extended to them by the United States Government, before Italy entered the European war. It was understood that the State Department intervened on behalf of the stranded Italians. It was made clear that future applications for similar treatment will be viewed with a very cold eye.

France Still Lives

Gen. De Gaulle Is Confident Cause Is Not Lost

General Charles de Gaulle's first attempt to rally France's colonies to his anti-Nazi, anti-Vichy standard ended in failure at Dakar. His second, in the Cameroons, has succeeded without opposition. He was welcomed there as a comrade-in-arms by the governor-general.

What lies ahead for De Gaulle is obscure. But the landing at Duala was made memorable by other than its status as a significant chapter of Free France's fight against Hitler. De Gaulle made it so by his response to the official welcome:

"Cameroon has set a magnificent example already, followed by a number of colonies, and others will follow. I cite Hitler's words in 'Mein Kampf' that a people may be beaten but when a people and their leaders accept defeat then they are forever lost. On the contrary, if a handful of men do not accept defeat then everything is to be hoped for."

The quotation from Hitler was apt; the interpretation was an inspiration. De Gaulle was the voice of France speaking—the France of liberty, equality and fraternity, opposing the subjugated France of Adolf Hitler.

Getting Old

A Toronto friend tells this one, that is well worthy of consideration by those who feel they are getting a wee bit old: A friend of mine well on in life visited an old crony in his former home town. While reminiscing, my friend remarked to the other, "Joe, we are getting old." "Well," was the reply, "I'm glad of that." "Glad?" exclaimed the other. "What do you mean?" "Why shouldn't I be glad," said Joe, "if I wasn't getting old I'd be dead, wouldn't I?"—Sheilburne Free Press and Economist.

You can supply your boy with enough money for a college education, but making the football team is something he has to do for himself.

From Argentina

Sixteen British Youths And One French National To Join Canadian Air Force

After travelling all the way from Argentina to enlist in the Royal Canadian Air Force 16 British youths and one French National, received a friendly greeting from James S. Duncan, deputy minister for air, recently.

Receiving the youths in his office Mr. Duncan found out he knew a number of their families. For three years he worked in Buenos Aires and came in contact with many farmers and ranchers.

It is from farming and ranching families of British origin that these would-be airmen come. All of them except one, are British subjects. Mr. Duncan said it was an illustration of the solidarity of the British peoples throughout the world that these young men should offer their services in a time of crisis. Their expenses on the trip to Canada were paid by a committee of British subjects in Argentina.

Prior to leaving they underwent a medical examination to determine their prospects of passing the stringent medical tests for admission to the air force. As soon as they receive a medical examination at Ottawa those who pass will be shipped off to the air force training depot at Toronto, except for the French member of the party, who will go to Quebec.

On Night Duty

Members of a number of London business houses have volunteered to stay on duty during the night to guard against fire. A janitor stumbled over a slumbering form in a corner one morning and roused the sleeper by tickling his feet—and got the shock of his life when he found he had awakened one of the firm's directors.

It is possible to see only two appearances of Halley's comet in a lifetime. It appears once every 75 to 77 years. Last visible in 1910, it again will appear in 1985.
